Michele Angel Joins Fugro-Jason as new Business Manager for North America

Houston, February 26, 2008 – Fugro-Jason (www.fugro-jason.com) announced today the appointment of Michele Angel as Business Manager for North America. In this role, Angel will be responsible for software and services sales in the United States. Fugro-Jason is a leader in reservoir characterization technology for the oil and gas industry.

"We welcome Michele Angel back to our team," said Eric Adams, Managing Director of Fugro-Jason. "She brings a unique set of skills and experience that will be crucial to our continuing success in North America."

Angel has broad experience in selling technical services to geoscientists and engineers. She has logged almost 20 years in the oil industry at GeoMechanics International, Jason Geosystems, and Marathon Oil. Angel has a BS in Geology from Florida State University, MS in Geophysics and MS in Petroleum Engineering, both from the University of Houston.

"Fugro-Jason is an industry leader developing cutting edge technology that has had significant impact on our industry," said Angel. "Its staff of highly trained professionals are a pleasure to work with and I am very glad to have this opportunity to rejoin the team."

About Fugro-Jason

Fugro-Jason is dedicated to delivering innovative products and services to help our clients identify and produce hydrocarbon deposits by integrating information from the various geoscience disciplines. The application of Fugro-Jason's technology, either through use of the software or through our consultancy services, substantially improves returns on E&P investments by adding invaluable reservoir model information that reduces the risks, costs and cycle-times associated with field development.

Fugro-Jason is a unit of Fugro NV. Fugro was founded in 1962, and is listed on Euronext NV, Amsterdam, the Netherlands. Fugro has more than 10,000 staff and a permanent presence in over 54 countries.
